By your heaviness and fear in Gethsemane, comfort the oppressed and those who are afraid.

By your loneliness, facing the Passion while the apostles slept, comfort those who face evil alone while the world sleeps.

By your persistent prayer, in anguish of anticipation, strengthen those who shrink from the unknown.

By your humility, taking the comfort of angels, give us the grace to help and to be helped by one another, and in one another to comfort you, O Christ
